TEACHERS ARE URGED TO GIVE SPECIAL CARE TO WEAK CHILDREN

"Forty-seven percent of the children of Rock county are underweight," it was found as a result of the baby weighing campaign which was carried on in this state in 1918," said Miss Emma Conley of the extension department of the state university, and for a number of years head of domestic science activities under state Supt. C. P. Conley. Miss Conley spoke at the educational rally Saturday afternoon at the high school.

"In examining our men for military service it was found that 25 to 50 per cent of them were suffering from malnutrition," she said. "England found during the Boer war that 45 percent of her soldiers were suffering from malnutrition to such an extent that they were unfit for military service. This made England sit up and take notice. Medical inspection was instituted in the schools. The children of England during the world war were in comparatively good health due to this medical supervision."

Advises Weighing Children. "The weighing of children under school age should be continued under the direction of the teachers, but I would suggest that the mothers themselves do the weighing."

Teachers should make it their business to know the weight of their pupils and be prepared to treat those suffering from malnutrition. Such food as oatmeal, cocoa, milk can be prepared at school. Proper food and enough of it, sleep, and I believe that the daylight saving bill was killed for one reason, because it kept children from getting enough sleep, fresh air, and healthful exercise, will cure any case of malnutrition," she said.

L. A. Markham told of several of his experiences in Russia where he spent many months during the war. He said:

"Russia looks to the United States for ideals in development. Their hope is all in the United States. Let us make our country a model for all of the European countries."

Seed Testing Demonstrated. Demonstrations suitable for school room use in picking, sowing, and testing seed corn, and testing soil for acidity were given by the county agricultural agent, R. T. Glasco.

The Retarded Child. Dr. Elizabeth Woods, state clinical psychologist, gave at the afternoon session. Dr. Woods gave as causes for a child being retarded: malnutrition, poor eyes and hearing, irregular attendance, poor teaching, entering school late, poor equipment, and social and emotional reasons. She emphasized the importance of the teacher in tracing retardation to one of these causes and seeking to remove the cause and cure the child.

Two of Sam Walter Foss' poems, "The Calf Path" and "The House by the Side of the Road" were given by Prof. J. R. Cotton, instructor in public speaking at Whitewater Normal.

WOOD FOLK TO MEET, AND AVOID.

By Adella Belle Beard. In the woods the raccoon lives and makes his home. You may have seen one after he had been killed, but what you want to do is to see him very much alive, shuffling bear-like over the dry leaves and pine needles. Like many other wild animals the raccoon usually chooses night for his ramble, but sometimes he can be seen by day when not asleep in a hawk's or crow's nest, or flattened out on a strong tree branch.

He is about the size of a fox terrier. His nose is pointed and he has bright, intelligent eyes. The long hair that covers him is grizzly and yellowish, darker on his back. He has a whitish face with black rings around his eyes and black on his cheeks. There are also black, strongly marked rings around his bushy tail. He uses his forepaws like hands, grasping his food like a monkey.

Anything he finds is good enough for him to eat, animal or vegetable. He likes nuts, cherries, wild grapes, bugs, birds or reptiles. Some of his habits are very funny and interesting to observe. One thing he cannot resist doing is to mount every fallen tree and run up it to its very length. When really cold weather comes, he and his family curl up together in a hollow tree, but on warm days they are out again. Game a raccoon and he will make a playful and amusing pet.

There is another little animal of the woods, beautiful but best admired from a distance. It bears the ugly name of skunk, but its name and the suffocating odor of the liquid it throws out when disturbed, which is its defense, are the only ugly things about it. It is usually about two feet in length, and strongly marked black and white, the marks different in different localities. The hair is long and the tail like a plume. "Winter Quarters in the Woods?" Wait till next week!

The pastor, Rev. Raymond C. Pierson, preached a sermon yesterday morning on the "Demands of Love" in which he showed that evidence of love for Christ was demonstrated most effectively by love for ones fellow men. The speaker cited the thought that while he believed most heartily in worship as such, and also in confession of faith, yet the test of love for Christ was in doing his will and in giving oneself in service to humanity with whom Christ was so closely identified.

The anthem sung by the chorus choir was "Sing Unto the Lord." Watson. Mrs. Alice Thomas directed it and Miss Dolly Strang sang the solo part. The choir also sang a "Gloria." Paces, by Lou.

By Irene I. Cleaves. Francis W. Parker School. "I was four years old, and pranced gaily around with my first balloon, my shimmering, delicate, wonderful, tugging, first balloon. FRANCES WILLARD DAY IS OBSERVED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Frances Willard day was celebrated in three of the schools of the city today by an address on the life of the great temperance worker, which was given by Mrs. Allen B. West, Milton, county superintendent of schools. Instruction of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. West spoke before the assembly of the high school this morning. She reviewed the early life of Frances Willard spent on the farm on the river road west of this city. Mrs. West told how after Miss Willard finished Downer college, Milwaukee, she was offered the presidency of principal in a school in New York state but because her heart was in the work of temperance she gave up the offer and accepted the presidency of the W. C. T. U. in Chicago, without any salary.

"It was always the ambition of Frances Willard," Mrs. West said "to have an article published in the Atlantic Monthly. When she was unable to do this, she said that she would try and make her life such that some day something of her work would be published in this magazine. This month's issue of the magazine contains several pages on the life of Frances Willard." Mrs. West said that Frances Willard was the only woman who was honored by having her name in the Hall of Fame in Washington.

Mrs. West also spoke at the Washington school this morning. This afternoon, in company with local members of the W. C. T. U., she spoke to the training school members and the seventh and eighth grades at the Jefferson school. The picture of Frances Willard which was presented to the training school by this year's graduation class was decorated this afternoon by the W. C. T. U. women.

PLAYS RICH CHURCH-GOERS

London.—"Our country must be saved from the low ideals which threaten it," said the Rev. F. J. Meyer. "People coming to church in the latest fashions and dressed in their smartest clothes make it difficult for people who cannot afford such extravagance to sit with them. The church was never intended to be a sort of parade ground for showing off the latest and most absurd fashions."

MORRISSEY MAKES GOOD.

Tom Morrissey has been acting chief of Janesville for several months. He was impressed into service at a time when the police department was in a most chaotic condition. Five patrolmen had quit after they made accusations against a member of the police commission; loose characters were making this city their abode; street-walkers and other undesirables roamed about unmolested; a series of highway robberies had been committed and the general moral tone of the city was decidedly low.

Morrissey took hold of the job of reorganizing a force and cleaning up the town. He did not herald his entrance into the arena with a blare of trumpets. He quietly took hold and began to get results. Two men were captured by the police and confessed to robbing soldiers. They were sent to prison for long terms. Loafers, gamblers and drunks were given to understand that Janesville was not a place where they could congregate. They were arrested and punished. Street-walkers began to disappear, until now their number is reduced to the minimum.

Chief Morrissey has stood firm for convictions after arrests were made. The old system of interference on the part of others has been broken up. Morrissey has turned deaf ears to those who would intercede for friends who were unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of the police. The whole atmosphere has been clarified and the public feels more secure than it did.

Much credit must be given Morrissey and his men for the change which has been brought about. The chief is a man of experience in police matters. He has shown good judgment in handling his job and he has acquitted himself in a satisfactory manner when put up against difficult problems. He has the respect of the public and the fear of those who formerly had nothing but sneers for the police department.

Chief Morrissey should be given full compensation for his work. He is receiving $1,500 a year as acting chief. The city could afford to pay him a salary equal to his responsibilities.

Working hand in hand with Chief Morrissey in the effort to clean up the city and inspire respect for the law has been Judge Harry Maxfield, municipal court. He has stood four-square back of the chief when offenders have been brought before him and the result has shown the value of co-operation.

NOT AN AMERICAN STRIKE.

After following the movements of leaders in the steel workers' strike, fair-minded men and women cannot help but have the feeling that the square union men are being used to further the purposes and strengthen the ranks of the radical element. The steel strike does not have the earmarks of an American strike. The American Federation of Labor is not strengthening its position because of the action of the strike leaders. The public does not like to see the American Federation of Labor placed in the position of favoring the actions of such men as Foster.

The American Federation of Labor has been careful to guard its reputation for fairness in most instances in the past. It has been willing to make a settlement when it was seen it would be advantageous not only to its members, but to the people. It has been given credit for such action and its strength lies in a great measure in the fact that the public believed in its honesty of purpose, although perhaps at times it did not agree with its stand in individual cases.

The radicals in the steel strike are pressing every advantage to undermine the sensible, sane element in the American Federation of Labor. The leaders have their eyes focused upon one point—the opportunity to get control of one of the strongest labor organizations in the world. They have seized upon this opportunity to enter a wedge, and unless the conservative elements in the federation stand squarely for their principles and for the things America stands for, these radicals are going to destroy in a short time those ideals which have been the pride of the workingman belonging to the organization.

The strike leaders do not care for the principles involved. They saw a chance to incite the workers to strike. Those workers were satisfied with their wages and before the poison of bolshevism was injected were satisfied with their condition. The radicals did not care whether Judge Gary met with the representatives of the workers or not. In fact they were elated when the announcement came that he would not deal with them. That is what they wanted. Judge Gary evidently showed poor judgment in playing so perfectly in the hands of the "reds."

The hearts of the real American workers are not in the strike. That was indicated on the first day the men walked out and it has cropped out in news despatches ever since. If it were not for the belief that they would be betraying the American Federation of Labor by returning to work at this time, it is safe to say that every real American workman would be at his job today. The foreigners are easily excited and fall easy victims to the harangue of such men as Foster, who has been known as an I. W. W. and is a syndicalist.

The eyes of the country are on the American Federation of Labor. The nation is anxious to see the organization break the grip of the radicals before it strangles the high purposes of that body of American union men.

KEEP AN EYE ON THE AGITATORS.

In connection with the steel strike, it is well to remember that the labor movement has two distinct functions. On the one hand we have peacefully disposed men, who believe in orderly government, and who are good, patriotic Americans. These men may be true to the labor cause, as they are true to their country. These are the men for whom Samuel Gompers and other sane leaders are fighting.

Quite different are the agitators who care nothing for our country, who applaud Trotsky and Lenin, who are nothing for breaking contracts with employers, and who secretly hope that by fomenting industrial chaos they can overturn the government and bring this country into the happy condition now enjoyed by Russia.

William Z. Foster, organizer of the steel strike, and such men, would be glad to destroy Samuel Gompers and orderly, self-respecting unionism as they would be to bestow the blessings of bolshevism upon the rest of us.

Foster's disciples for the most part are credulous, excitable, impressionable Hungarian and Polish workers, who think that the strike will overthrow prohibition while dealing a telling blow to capitalism. Men

AMERICA.

Oh, there is no better country than the one that I'm adoring.
With the Stars and Stripes of Freedom tossing brightly in the sky,
With its shore lines eastwards, westwards, where the ocean waves are roaring
And a thousand brooks and rivers singing songs as they go by.

Oh, the world is ridged with mountains, but the giants of the west land,
That are kissed by clouds o'morning and brushed by clouds o' night,
Are the guardians of our freedom in the land that is the best land
And they shield us in our laughter and our hours of real delight.

Oh, God's children world-wide over walk and romp in sunny places,
But it's here their hearts are lightest and it's here their dreams come true;
It is here they live their childhood with no sadness in their faces
And it's here they live as children with no bitter tasks to do.

There are men in foreign countries, men of strength and men of splendor,
But it's here the men of Freedom march united in a throng;
It is here that men fight hardest for the sacred things and tender,
And it's here they come to evening to the hilling of a song.

Oh, there is no better country than the land of my devotion,
It is here I want to linger, and it's here I want to die;
Let me sleep here through the ages—I shall hear the surging ocean
And the laughter of the children as they all go trooping by.

like Foster can make them believe most anything. They carry the torch of extreme radicalism, and await only the opportunity to burn and destroy.

These are good times in which to sustain and encourage the honest workers and their leaders, and watch the would-be terrorists. We are witnessing a scramble for power, on the part of the men who would be as dangerous to society, if they got the chance, as the men who overthrew Roman civilization in the fifth century, and brought on that gloomy period of a thousand years that we know as the Dark Ages.

Our opinion of the person who will turn in a false fire alarm is that he is not necessary to the welfare of the community. If those who have been pulling this trick in this city think they are practical jokers they are misled.

"Caddy, Mister?"

Mending Broken Men

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Baltimore, Sept. 29.—About the old flag pole here, from which streamed America's banner on that eventful morning in 1814 when it inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem, today grouped a huge hospital, which serves the purpose of mending men who were broken in the war. It is but one of a score of such hospitals and the way they work may be well shown by reciting the stories of a few of these boys in the wards of Fort McHenry hospital.

There is Sergeant Lea, for instance, who is today a personnel clerk in the major's office. The major likes to call him Sergeant, and visitors who are at the hospital to ask him to tell his story. Six feet two is the sergeant, and as straight as a tree. "Have you got that picture?" the major usually asks when the sergeant comes in, and the sergeant reaches into his vest pocket and pulls out a little print that was made a year ago upon the occasion of his return from overseas to his native land. The visitor examines the picture and is appalled. It is that of a man broken into the form of a human interrogation point—an apparently irretrievably injured soldier.

Says Sergeant Lea, "I tell you that nothing much had happened to him. He had merely got a broken back. A freight car had run over him, and he says. When he came to Fort McHenry hospital he met Major Sam Baldwin, who used to be a surgeon in Salt Lake City. Major Sam had cured two or three cases of broken backs and broken necks before the war. He was a specialist in that sort of thing."

He put Sergeant Lea on an army cot, placed a halter about his neck with a weight on the end which hung over the front of the cot. Then he elevated the head of the cot until two feet. Under these circumstances the weight of the body of the sergeant constantly stretched his crooked spine. After a month it was possible for him to lie upon his back, well straightened. Then he placed himself upright and so increased that he remained perfectly upright. He could go about freely in this straight position. The surgeon worked three months, when it was broken off and he emerged as good as new.

Sgt. Jolly Loses Bone.
Sergeant Jolly is a man about the hospital whose remarkable recovery is yet complete. Sergeant Jolly has lost six inches of the bone of his upper leg. His fingers were normally but his arm merely flaps idly at his side. The surgeons are now about ready to fix him up with a new bone in his upper arm, and soon he will be getting back to normal. The operation to which Sergeant Jolly is to be subjected has been performed on a number of other men in the hospital. The surgeons have next to little saws, such as cabinet makers use, and with these cut out a piece of the shin bone of the patient, of the exact length desired. They leave the right of the shin bone to keep the leg in its proper shape and nature will immediately set about replacing the bone taken out. The pieces of bone so secured is, through a second operation of neat carpentry, fitted into the ends of the bone in the arm in such a way as to be perfectly secure. The fitting is so neatly done that the borrowed bone, live as it is, and taken from the body of the patient operated upon, is immediately joined with the arm bones and the two grow together. There is live peristomium at least one fragment of the original bone, and this spreads until the bone is entirely encased with its normal surface skin. So the injured member is stiffened and made useful again.

Chuckles That He Is Alive.
These cases by no means require such careful and delicate work as did the serious operation performed on Private Yingling. This young man was in the Argonne drive when the Germans were putting over great quantities of high explosives. A shell burst right beside him and he corks in self-congratulation every time he thinks of it, because he is still alive. One fragment of the shell scraped the back of his head, while another fragment carried away his nose. Had either fragment of the shell been a half inch in front of Private Yingling would have been killed on the spot.

The first operation performed by the surgeons was that of cutting a strip of skin from the private's forehead—leaving one end of it attached so it would be nourished and pulling the other end down over the wound. Carefully tended, the forehead soon replaced the borrowed skin and the injured man presented a most peculiar appearance in that he wore a

Q. Who are the Dunkers or Dunkards? W. W. C.

A. The Dunkers or Dunkards are an outgrowth of the German Baptist Pietist sect who settled in Pennsylvania in the 18th century. A. Corn of the same quality may be white, yellow, blue or black. White corn is likely to be a bit milder in taste. Various sections prefer corn of certain colors. Q. What does "cinema" mean? C. C.

A. The treasury department says that the United States spent during the war period up to June 30, 1918, $22,500,000,000. The normal expenditures during that period would have been about $2,500,000,000, which would leave $20,000,000,000 chargeable to the war.

Q. How can one tell when leap year comes? H. P. B.

A. These years divisible by four are leap years. When they fall on the even hundred when they must be divisible by four and also by 400. The year 1900 bore the first part of this test, but not the last, and therefore was not a leap year.

Q. What divisions saw most fighting during the war? M. R.

What Bulk Storage Means to You

ONE of the major services which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders you, is to maintain at all times, at convenient points throughout the territory it serves, large storage tanks filled with gasoline, kerosene and lubricating oils for quick delivery to you when you need them.

Assume for a moment what would happen if severe weather or unforeseen transportation conditions should cut off deliveries from the refinery for a week, and that no appreciable surplus was available.

You would walk for your groceries. Your physician would be slow in arriving in case of sickness. Business generally would suffer through inability to make deliveries.

In a word, unless the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) maintains a tremendous surplus in the field at all times your domestic and commercial welfare would be jeopardized.

This vast storage of 156,528,950 gallons is but a single cog in the giant wheel of usefulness which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) operates in discharging its obligations as a public servant in a manner satisfactory and beneficial to all.

THE WISHING PLANE

We had to stop yesterday's story just as Como told about the farmer killing the silk worm in his cocoon by putting the cocoon in a very hot place. So, now you'll hear what happened after that.

"When the farmer is ready to get the silk from the cocoon he soaks the little bundles in hot water," said Como. "When they are thoroughly soaked they are taken out. Workmen find the ends of the fine silk thread and unwind it onto spools—or reels. Later this fine thread is twisted into heavier thread and it is cloth or great factories. Some of those factories are in Italy. Some of the silk thread is shipped to France to big factories there. There is a great silk mill at Como, in our country. I guess mother and father must have named me after that city.

"It's hard to believe that little worms like the farmer raises here make such a wonderful thing as silk," said Jack, after Como had taken them all over the farm and

"You seem to have obtained a very good education despite the fact that your father and mother aren't what we would call well-to-do," said Captain Brave.

"It wasn't hard," said Como, laughing. "I worked at home each year during the summer and until the wine had been made and then I went to Rome and found work in a store there. I would work in the store early in the morning and after college hours and learn my lessons after I was through at the store. I arranged with the man who owned the store to stay at his home. He let me sleep and eat there as part of my pay, you see, and then gave me a little money besides. I had to make that do for books and other things I needed at school."

"When you little folks get back to Make Believe town and feel a bit angry when the teacher gives you hard lessons, you want to think of Como and how he worked to go to school," said Ladydeer to the children. "The Italian boy had finished his story."

"I didn't mind it," said Como, smiling. "It was fun, studying. I learned many new things. Maybe they won't help me here on the farm or in any particular kind of work, but what I have learned has taught me to think and study everything I do so that I can do it better next time."

Jack and Jane didn't say anything just then, but both of them decided that looking at school the way Como did would make it seem much more pleasant.

CINCINNATI AND SOX INFIELDS ARE EVENLY MATCHED

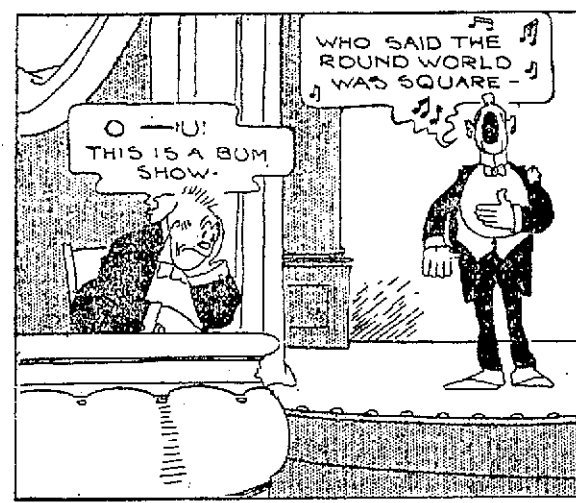

[By Associated Press.]
Chicago, Sept. 29.—The White Sox infield which played against the Cincinnati Reds in the big series this year with only one change. The exception is Risberg at short stop, who was back in 1917 by Manager Rowland when Weaver was shifted to short and McMullin placed at third. This season, however, when Risberg struck his first home run to hit. Of the eight players who will meet this year in the inner lines of defense of Jake Daubert, the initial sackers, the solo Cincinnati infielder with world series experience, Daubert passed through the baseball classic as a member of the Brooklyn Nationals back in 1917. Of the world series veterans, Eddie Collins, premier keystone sacker, of the White Sox heads them all. Collins, a member of the 1917 team, played in a great club participated in five series and after joining the White Sox took part in the series against the Cincinnati Reds.

At the first corner, Manager Gleason will rely on Chick Gandil, while the Cincinnati interest will be founded by Jake Daubert. Gandil probably will have the edge over Daubert, as the former is said to be much greater than his rival. Both are close hitters, although Gandil's mark is better than that of his rival. The Chicago first baseman has fielded around .985 while the Red initial sacker has fielded .959. Both can go after anything which came their way and can shift to either side of the bag for a throw, but the honors in this respect lean toward Gandil. Each has had a taste of the world series game. Daubert being on the first part of the Cincinnati team in 1917. The work of these two men should be interesting. Gandil got off to a poor account of himself the latter part of the season. Like all the White Sox members, he may come through with a hit at the critical moment. He is more dangerous at the bat than his Red rival, and for the greater part of the season has been hitting about .305, while Daubert has hit about .270.

Collins vs. Rath.
The right around second base will be between a veteran and a player who once tried to get the place from him, when both were members of the same club—the White Sox. At that time Morrie Rath, the Red's second sacker, was a youngster, and did not have the ability to get the club the same class as Collins in his fielding or on the bases and has not been hitting as steadily as his Chicago rival. Collins has been batting around the .315 mark the greater part of the season while Rath has been crowding the pill around .270. While Rath does not show the same dash on the bases as Collins, he is a steady and heady man on the paths. Collins is considered a brimnier player than Rath, and his ability to steady an infield or a pitcher surpasses that of the Red's second baseman. In fielding Rath has hung up a mark of .975 while Collins' mark has been about .978.

Risberg and Kopf should stage an interesting battle for shortstop honors. Kopf is the smaller man but has been batting around .250 while Risberg's average is ten points lower. Kopf is a clever fielder and can go as far as his rival after pop flies, but the Swede has a stronger arm, and will win more men out than his rival from deep short. In fielding Risberg has hung up a mark of .960, while Kopf's mark has been .949. Kopf has hit better than Risberg, his mark being .250 to Risberg's .245. Risberg was a member of the world's series team which beat the Giants but he watched most of the games from the bench because of his erratic throwing. He has overcome this fault however. This is the first time for Kopf to play in an event of this kind. Risberg is more dangerous on the bases than his rival. He is a big man and has a strong arm. Weaver is Dangerous. Weaver has not hit as well as his rival, Groh, but he is a more dangerous batter in a series where there is money at stake. Weaver has been batting about .295, while Groh has been going along better than .310 for the greater part of the season. Groh suffered an injury and was out of the game for some time, and may not be up to his best in the series. Although those on the inside feel that he will not be found lacking in any department of the game when the bell rings. Weaver is more of a scrapper than his rival, and displays more pop than Groh. At bat Groh stands facing the pitcher, full and bays right handed. Weaver, on the other hand, can hit from either side of the plate. He also is a good bunter and will outplay his rival on the bases. Both are clever fielders, but Weaver is the more aggressive. In fielding Groh's mark has been around .970 while that of his Chicago rival is .980.

McMullin who played against the Giants in 1917 as a member of the White Sox is an able substitute for either short or third, and is a better fielder than Risberg. A recruit who filled in during Groh's absence. Schreiber, however, had not earned in the playing game up to the first part of the season, his mark being 1.000, while McMullin who played a number of games at third, held up a fielding mark of .922 and a batting mark of .222 to Schreiber's .170.

The records of these players for the greater part of the season in batting and fielding follow:
Cincinnati Reds:

	Batting	Fielding
Daubert	.270	.959
Rath	.270	.975
Kopf	.245	.949
Groh	.295	.980

Gandil .305 .985
Collins .315 .978
Risberg .245 .960
Weaver .295 .969

Mitchell Will Meet Joe Wellington in Cincinnati

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Joe Wellington, local lightweight contender, and Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee were signed last night for a ten-round bout to take place at the Highland Field, Cincinnati, Wednesday evening, the night of the opening game of the world's series. Promoter Joe Levy made a hurried trip to town, and landed the plum despite the fact the Milwaukee and Racine clubs had been seeking it for weeks. This bout takes the place of the Battling Levinsky-Harry Groh match, which was cancelled.

CONTRACT SIGNED FOR TWO BATTLES WITH FAIRY NINE

Final arrangements for the big two game series with the championship Beloit Fairies, who are at present cleaning up things in the south, have been completed by Roger G. Cunningham, chairman of the baseball committee of the Welcome Home celebration. The first battle will be staged at Morse field in Beloit next Saturday with the second one to be put on here, on the following Wednesday, October 8, as the big feature attraction of Janesville's monster Welcome Home celebration.

The Sanborn Tractor company has agreed to finance the game in Janesville while 100 local fans have signed to back the team in the opening game in Beloit. The entire middle west is being scoured for players for the game Saturday. It will be a real tug-of-war between the two teams. The Fairies are a semi-pros in this City gang next Saturday. Mr. Cunningham promises it is the supreme desire of the management to give the engine makers two sound trouncings. Janesville's line-up for the game here, October 8, will include seven Chicago Cub regulars. Grover Cleveland, Alexander, the pitching "ace" of the national league, and Bill Killmer, his battery-mate will make up the combination doing the heavy work. Under terms of the agreement made, Alexander will pitch the entire game. Backing up this duo of stars will be Charley Hollicher, Dode Paske, Turner Barber, Bob O'Farrell and Bill McCabe, all Cub regulars.

The postponed Albany Janes game will be staged here a week from next Sunday, October 12, the manager announces.

JACK WINS!

Mexico City, Sunday, Sept. 28.—Jack Johnson, former heavy-weight champion of the world, knocked out Kid Culler in the sixth round of their 25-round match here this morning.

After one of the preliminary bouts a quarrel caused over a decision given by Antonio Sarahi, the referee, and Sarahi drew a revolver and dangerously wounded Miguel Mendizabel, one of the judges.

RAIN FORCES THREE NINES INTO IDLENESS

Janesville's baseball jinx was on the job again yesterday this time in the form of a steady rain and soggy grounds preventing J. A. Murphy's team from getting into action for the second time in two weeks. When Old Sol peeped through the overcast sky for the brief space of a few seconds about 12:30 word was at once sent to Manager Ray Croake of the all-star Albany outfit that the game would be played but a few minutes later when the deluge was renewed he was notified to keep his tribe indoors.

Other local teams, including the Rails and the All-Stars, were also forced to suspend operations for the day on account of the downpour. The postponed Albany Janes game will be staged here a week from next Sunday, October 12, the manager announces.

SERIES WILL NET UNCLE SAM $18,000

Washington, Sept. 29.—The United States treasury is expecting to benefit at least $18,000 on the world's series baseball games. Each purchaser of a ticket will have to pay the customary admission tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof, which on the basis of last year's attendance will mean enough money to pay the salary of the president for nearly three months. Officers of the bureau of internal revenue will go to Cincinnati and Chicago to check up on returns. Brokers, it is believed, will find the business of "scalping" tickets this year at exorbitant prices much less profitable than in the past.

FAIRIES DEFEAT MEMPHIS, 5 TO 1

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29.—The Fairies-Memphis baseball team of Beloit, won from the Memphis Gasers Sunday, 5 to 1, hitting Thweatt at will. The score: Fairies 5 3 1 0 0 0 0 0—5 15 1 Memphis 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 3 1. But Jes-Kemman and Shook; Thweatt and Motter.

Racine Plays Tie with Brickley's Star Team

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 29.—Hammond's professional football team played a no-score game with the Racine Athletics here yesterday afternoon. The Hammond stars lacked team work and were in reality outplayed by Racine. King, the former Harvard kicker, narrowly missed scoring a 50-yard drop that hit the goal post.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 29.—"Rabbit" Moranville, shortstop of the Boston National league team, got just before the start of an exhibition game here yesterday afternoon and it is thought that his collarbone was fractured. An X-ray will be taken to determine the extent of his injury.

Salt Lake Licenses Granted
Eau Claire.—The city council today issued salt lake licenses to seven local saloon keepers who are selling 2.5 percent beer. The license fee here is $600. The other local saloon keepers, some 12 in number will not sell 2.5 percent beer, confining their sales to near beer and other soft drinks.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

By Jack Keene.
Jimmy Wilde, England's sensational flyweight boxer, whose matches against Pat Moore of Memphis and Joe Lynch of New York have made American boxing followers eager to get a glimpse of the British phenom in action, will probably arrive in this country early in November. Roy McCormick, lightweight champion of Great Britain and holder of the Lord Londsdale championship belt, is authority for this statement.

The rigid enforcement of emigration laws in England will prevent Wilde from coming to this country before November, according to McCormick. The little Welshman has accepted one of the many lucrative offers made by American promoters and is prepared to sail, but has been unable to get his passport yet.

Wilde is anxious to visit America and demonstrate his ability before you followers of the sport," said McCormick, "but I doubt whether he will get here before November, and not then, unless he is extremely lucky. I say this from the experience I had in coming over. I was all ready for the trip for six weeks before I obtained my passport, and then I was fortunate in securing accommodations on the ship coming across. The demand for ship accommodations is remarkable. It seems everybody is coming to America. Just before I sailed I saw Wilde's manager and he informed me he had accepted American offers for bouts and was preparing for the journey here. But at that time he had not begun to arrange for passports. He'll have a hard time getting these credentials."

Last winter the St. Louis club traded Gene Packard and Douglas Baird to the Phillies for "Dixie" Davis, Pickles Dillhoefer and Milton Stock. That Branch Rickey derived considerable benefit from this transaction.
